REX EDWARD FRANKLIN

Rex E. Franklin was born January 29, 1917 in Vergennes, IL, to Elza E. and Louisa (Rath) Franklin. He died March 6, 1996 at his home in Vergennes, the small town where he had spent all of his life.

Rex worked for the Natural Gas Pipeline Company for 27 years. One of the duties of his job was to inspect the suspended pipe line across the Mississippi River. This meant he had to walk on the pipe across the river and then back again.

Having collected historical memorabilia for years, it became necessary for Rex to create storage for his ever growing collection. He secured an old school bus, installed lighting and built shelves for records and books. His main interest was in Southern Illinois history but he also collected some Missouri history. He frequented auctions looking for additions to his collection and you could hardly mention a book but what he had it, (or he might have two).

He was a camera buff who took innumerable pictures and also collected pictures. His photos, plus his collection of pictures, many times gave both past and present of a location. Many of Rex's photos were reproduced in pencil sketches by his friend, Roscoe Misselhorn of Sparta. They frequently went on tours of Southern Illinois, recording both by pencil and camera the ancient buildings and sites of historical interest.

Through the efforts of Rex, hundreds of names in pioneer cemeteries have been recorded and saved from obscurity. He drove thousands of miles, sometimes in the company of Warren Smith, another Vergennes resident and history buff, to search out hidden burial plots. Many of these only contained one or two stones, but they were faithfully read and recorded.

Anyone looking for information could always count on Rex for assistance. He would copy papers, loan books and could give a lot of geneaology "off the top of his head."

At one point, Rex and good friend, Loran Davis, decided the Old Vergennes cemetery had been ignored too long. This cemetery contains some of the earliest settlers in the Vergennes area. Both men had joint replacements, Rex, a hip, and Loran a knee. (We affectionately called them the "two cripples who went out to do the impossible.") However, these two went limping out and cut, grubbed and cleaned until the cemetery was in perhaps the best shape it had ever experienced. A flag pole was erected also.

Rex belonged to many societies, among them the Masonic Lodge 287 of De Soto, Council Chapter Consistory for the Scottish Rite Lodge, Southern Illinois Genealogy Society, the Randolph County Historical Society, Indiana Historical Society and the Perry County Historical Society.

Rex E. Franklin was buried at McElvain cemetery, Du Quoin, IL. He will be missed by all of those who knew him. Farewell, old friend, and God Bless.

FOREWORD

This work has been done in the hopes that it will provide some names which may have been hidden from the view of the genealogist. Please remember that the difficulty of reading the records may have resulted in the erroneous spelling of names, which possibly weren't spelled correctly in the records in the beginning. In some of the records, especially the Militia Census, it appears names have been entered twice.

We wish to thank the Genealogy Society of Southern Illinois for their permission to copy from their quarterly publication, The Saga, the 1830 census, the 1850 Agricultural census and the 1862 Militia census.

The 1840 census was transcribed from microfilm by Inez Bost Eisenhauer. She also did all alphabetical listings and the notations for the 1830 census, plus the listing of names from the 1835-1850 "entry book." Our thanks to Donna Timpner Vuichard for the loan of the "entry book", which Donna will publish in it's entirety in the future.

To Gayle and Leonard Eisenhauer, a big thanks for their assistance.

Hopefully, you, the reader, will find that elusive ancestor of yours within these pages.

This 1850 Agricultural Census was originally printed in the Southern Illinois Genealogy Society's publication SAGA, XIX/2. It was abstracted by Donna Timpner Vuichard, of Pinckneyville, Il. We want to thank all concerned for their permission to reprint this work.

There were forty-six columns of various statistics such subjects as owner, acreage, values of land and animals, value of home manufactured products and even the pounds of butter at that location.

Since the forty-six columns were to be used over the entire United States, many of the columns did not apply to this location and for that reason not included in this report.

Jean Parks Hauffe did u complete list of all categories and it was published in the Saline County 1850 Agricultural Census in the Fall issue, 1990 of SAGA XVII, No. 3.
